Person or event commemorated:

History of Commission: Jenners was founded in 1837 by Charles Jenner and Charles Kennington. Their previous building was destroyed by fire in 1892, and these premises were built to replace those. The style of architecture is Free Renaissance. The female statues represent the various nations of Europe and America with which the firm had dealings.

In 1995, to coincide with the centenary of the building, restoration was started. The restoration and stabilisation work was carried out between May 1995 and December 1996. The architects were The Michael Laird Partnership; the stone consultant was Bob Heath; the sculpture conservator was Graciela Ainsworth and the contractor was Watson Stonecraft. David Lindsay (Stoneworks) recarved the strapwork and heraldic animals and birds on the balconies, and Bob Thomson recarved the pediment above the Princes Street entrance.
