

KINCARDINESHIRE.

BANCHORY - TERNAN PARISH.

"STONES, KENNERTY. The stones marked in Roman characters half a mile S. W. of Kennerty are modern and need not be revisited.

Lxxxiii. N. E.

July 13th 1943.

A. 19/9/60.

KINCARDINESHIRE.

BANCHORY - TERNAN PARISH.

"PILES OF STONES", ETC., HILL OF FARE. Numerous small piles of stones were examined in different parts of the Hill of Fare, including the Valley of the Burn of Corrichie, Blackyduds and Myrey Hill, and in every case they proved to be without archaeological significance. The same is true of the small stones marked "L" and "R". (See also under Aberdeenshire, Parish of Echt.)

Lxxxiv. S. W.

July 14th 1943.

A.G. 19/9/60.

KINCARDINESHIRE.

BANCHORY - TERNAN PARISH.

DOMESTIC SETTLEMENT, HOWE OF CORRICHIE. Spread out along the N. side of the valley of the Burn of Corrichie, in the stretch marked "Howe of Corrichie" on the 6-in. O. S. map and about 400 yds. N. of the burn, there are some traces of a settlement which, though of primitive appearance, is unlikely to be ancient. The ruins of a small house, an enclosure some 60 ft. in diameter marked out by a foundation of boulders, field-divisions, and piles of gathered stones were noted, together with a hollow track.

No other antiquities were observed in this area, which was probably unfavourable for human habitation at all periods owing to the thinness of the soil and the prevalence of superficial stones, and no further search need be made when the Inventory is prepared.

Lxxxiv. S. W. (unnoted).

July 14th 1943.

AG. 19/9/60.

KINCARDINESHIRE.

BANCHORY - TERNAN PARISH.

"QUEEN'S CHAIR", BERRY HILL. This small shelf, just below the S. E. brow of the hill up which a stone dyke runs along the county boundary, is almost certainly a fortuitous result of the quarrying of the outcrop just above it, as is also - and this time without any doubt - the very narrow path-like shelf under the cliff a few yards to the N.

LXXXIV. S. W.

July 14th 1943.

A.G. 19/9/60.